Course Goals

This course forms the second half of an intensive introduction to Classical Greek, in which you will continue to develop and master a foundational knowledge of Greek grammar, syntax, and vocabulary, as well as your ability to translate short passages of prose from Greek to English, and vice versa.

Grading

Class participation (attendance, preparation, participation)	10%
Quizzes (10 total)	5%
Translation assignments (10 total)	10%
Grammar assignments (20 total)	10%
Two in-class tests , each worth 15% (Feb. 13 and April 1)	30%
Final exam (date TBA)	35%
Total	100%

Assignments

Class participation: You are encouraged and expected to participate actively in the classroom. Participation marks will be based on: attendance, timeliness, preparation (bringing textbooks to class, assignments completed, vocabulary memorized, etc.), and readiness to respond when called upon.

Quizzes: During Weeks 1–11, eleven short vocabulary and grammar quizzes will be given on the last class of the week. The quiz with the lowest mark will be dropped from the calculation of your final grade for the class.

Translation and Grammar assignments: There will be two kinds of homework assigned during Weeks 1–12. For the Translation assignments, you will translate several sentences from English into Greek, and vice versa. The Grammar assignments will be shorter than the Translation assignments, and will include a variety of exercises. All homework will be due at the beginning of class. One Translation assignment and two Grammar assignments with the lowest marks will be dropped from the calculation of your final grade for the class.

Late assignments: Assignments turned in late or electronically cannot be accepted or graded.

In-class tests: There will be two in-class tests. The first, on February 13, will cover Sections 65–90, and the second, on April 1, will cover Sections 91–111; each test is worth 15% of your final grade for the class, for a total of 30%.

Missed quizzes, assignments, and tests: Tests, assignments, and quizzes may be excused (but not retaken or handed in late) only in cases of medical or personal emergencies, or for religious obligations. In all cases, proper documentation needs to be provided within one week in order for the instructor to excuse the absence. The weight of the missed quiz, assignment, or test will be added to the weight of the next such item on the schedule.

Final examination: The final exam will be held in conjunction with the other section of GRK 102 H1S during the exam period, April 9–30, at a date to be announced. The final exam is worth 35% of your final grade for the class.

Textbooks and Resources

Required Texts

Greek: An Intensive Course, by Hardy Hansen and Gerald M. Quinn, 2nd ed., revised. New York: Fordham University Press, 2009. ISBN: 0-8232-1663-2.

Everyone is expected to purchase personal copies of the three required textbooks at the University of Toronto Bookstore. A separate Greek-English/English-Greek dictionary is not required for this class, since the textbook contains a vocabulary at the end, but may prove useful later if you plan to continue your study of the language.

Important Information

Course website: The course website is found on Blackboard, which may be accessed via the U of T Portal login page (portal.utoronto.ca). (If you have not used your UTORid before, see utorid.utoronto.ca for information on activation and setting your password.) Login with your UTORid and password and look for this course under the My Courses box on the right. Please check the website on a regular basis for important announcements and supplementary materials.

Course email: You must use your university email address for correspondence in this course; the instructor is unable to respond to emails sent from other addresses. (Please be aware that if your U of T email is forwarded to another account, some messages from the instructor may be filtered out as spam or junk.) Please be sure to include your full name and the course title in your email message. The instructor will aim to reply to emails within forty-eight hours on weekdays, but this may not always be possible.

Meetings: Everyone is welcome to meet with the instructor during office hours or contact her through email to discuss any questions or concerns. If you are encountering difficulties, please do not hesitate to contact the instructor for assistance. The instructor is unable to give private tutorials to individuals.

In the classroom: You are expected to participate in maintaining a respectful, supportive classroom atmosphere. Any cell phones and other noise-making electronic devices must be turned off during class. Texting and web surfing are a distraction to other students and will result in a reduction of your participation mark.

Accessibility Services: Information on accommodations for disabilities or accessibility concerns is available from Accessibility Services at accessibility.utoronto.ca.
